What would you have done, Mr. Hughes?

The price of wheat in Cynthiana yesterday was $1.25 per bushel, probably the highest farmers ever received during harvest. Blaine Wilson—Cynthiana Democrat.

Mr. Hughes says "reasonable preparedness is simply common sense." Certainly, Mr. Hughes. You are a little late waking up. The Democratic administration found next to nothing in this line when it came into power in 1913, but is rapidly supplying the deficiency, and this is some job.

Calamity howling, vituperation, denunciations of his opponent, insinuations that "a look at the books, will show dishonesty, and such old time bull can compose the chief part of Hughes' speeches. Where is the dignity that is supposed to attach to all candidates for the highest office in the world? He has descended to the level of the ordinary stump speaker.

Before Justice Hughes completed his speech of acceptance he called Senator Fall, of New Mexico, into conference on Wilson's "failure" in Mexico. Senator Fall advised him, and as a result three-fourths of his speech dealt with Mexico. In this connection it is profitable to remember that Senator Fall has large possessions in Mexico, which, naturally, he wants to pay big dividends. He is strongly in favor of the United States going to war with Mexico. In other words, he wants the blood of American youth shed to make his investments good.

It would be tough on American youth, but we gather from Justice Hughes' utterances that he is opposed to Wilson's policy which has kept us out of war. Editor William R. Hearst, of New York and California, also has large possessions in Mexico, and consequently is one of Wilson's bitterest enemies and one of Hughes' strongest supporters. He also is ardently in favor of war. It would be very fine no doubt to have a few thousand American boys killed or wounded to make Mr. Hearst's investments good, along with Senator Fall, but somehow we have a sneaking notion that the voters are not going to approve the plan in November.—Cynthiana Democrat.

JIM ALLEN'S POEM.

There is a girl in this old town who's modest and quite sweet but there's a rumor going round that mates are not her feet. Still just so far as I can see those feet quite fill the shoes, and nothing that the gossips say can alter my own views. What doth it matter if one foot is pointing to the east when westward swings the other toes? It matters not the least! So mind your business, gossips all, and give this girl a chance—she may have learned to walk that way by frequenting the dance.—Cynthiana Democrat.

OBITUARY OF PHILLIP HATTEN.

Mr. Phillip Hatten was born in Wayne county, W. Va., Dec. 4, 1832 and died July 19, 1916 are 83 years 7 months and 15 days. He was married to Ruhama Riggs, Jan. 15, 1851 with whom he lived a happy wedded christian life for 29 years 3 months and 2 days, when death claimed this good faithful and devoted companion. Eight children were the fruits of this happy union and lived to enjoy manhood and womanhood, and four of them passed to the great beyond before their father. On May 19, 1881 Mr. Hatten was married to the widow Garrett, and to this union no children were born, but they lived together 35 years, a happy devoted wife when death claimed Mr. Hatten's second companion, and she preceded her dear husband to the Glory Land only 2 months.

He was of Quaker parentage and as a child acquired these virtues which have distinguished this splendid people through all the years of their history.

Through remoteness from the church of his parents and because of the dominating religious influence of the community in which he lived and especially the influence of his wife, he early became a member of the church and was converted and lived a consistent religious life over 45 years and died in its fellowship.

In the years of his strength he was an office bearer in the church and was very zealous in promoting his work. His home was the home of preachers. It mattered not what the denomination. A man whose business character was unquestioned, whose influence was always helpful, whose christian faith was steadfast, has gone to his crown. His remaining children rise up to call him blessed.

Uncle Phil, as he was so familiarly known, lived such a good moral christian life, that it mattered not how drunk a man or boy got when Uncle Phil went to them to lend aid and administer words of kindness they most obeyed. He was a good moral christian, and his life was a blessing to all who knew him. He was a good man, a good father, a good husband, a good neighbor, a good citizen, a good christian, a good man.

He was a good man, a good father, a good husband, a good neighbor, a good citizen, a good christian, a good man.
